Primarily hunters of the aquatic variety this tribe of Boggrel have been known to be very adept at fishing and hunting near water. The closeness to the town of Farragylinn has also shown promise as well, the Boggrel have been well known to trade with the townspeople and defend it from certain Woad Tribes who also attack them. These Boggrel have never seen another Tribe of Boggrel.

Kelga Tribe

Primary Colour: Yellow and Black

Aggression: High

Relationship with other Tribes:

-Wash Tribe – None

-Fen Tribe – Competitive for food and land

-Quell Tribe – Easy to kill and raid food supplies

-Minor Tribes – Don't bother us, Don't bother them

Dwellings: Underground caves near sulphurous swamps.

These Boggrel have understanding of poisons and how to use them effectively against other tribes. Unfriendly to all who oppose them they have been known to use tactics such as poisoning food in the area of another tribe, assassinating healers of other tribes, and even attacking caravans attempting to pass through their claimed area. These Boggrel are fewer in numbers but are deadly in night time combat.

Fen Tribe

Primary Colour: Brown

Aggression: Medium

Relationship with other Tribes:

-Wash Tribe – None

-Kelga Tribe – Competitive for food and land

-Quell Tribe – Open trade, although fights have erupted.

-Minor Tribes – Join us, or fall to our blades.

Dwellings: Nomadic, although resting areas are almost always bogs.

Fen Tribe are well known for having multiple tribes and colours within their numbers, these are the most well known Boggrel in Kalidor for good reasons. These Boggrels rarely have one resting area around bogs or swamps going to where ever the food is easiest to hunt to support their vast numbers. They have the highest population among all the Boggrel and could very well be the first tribe among the Boggrel.
